kers-A Reaction May be Looked for. NWARD and upward seems to be the motto of the street just at present and the feeling s as violently bullish as it was bearish a short time ago. This is not surprising, as stock speculators never do anything by halves; they very often, however, carry their movements to extremes, and unless the leaders make efforts to check thecurrent speculation is likely to run wild. The day opened with a whirl of excitement at the Stock that the thing was done to signalize the return of Bateman, who has been rusticating for a week or so.

Henry Clews was one of the happiest of brokers. He said:

"The bears have been completely routed and Bateman, Cammack and the rest have been on the dead run since yesterday and haven't stopped yet. I told my customers," he continued, "on Oct. 19, that they should buy all they could as stocks would boom for the next six months, as I believe they will." Other brokers held similar views and were telegraphing to their out-of-town customers to buy on the reactions and sell on the bulges. As a general thing they recommend the purchases of such shares as have not risen much as yet, and the low-priced ones are also favorites. Already big money has been made in Hocking Coal, Erie, Tennessee & Colorado Coal and Norfolk & Western. This morning Wheeling & Lake Erie began to move up lively, and it soon crossed 48.

The greatest disappointment to the bears was St. Paul. This has been their stronghold, and when it moved up in spite of all efforts to keep it down demoralization spread through their ranks. It opened % higher at 76 and crept up steadily until it soid a fraction above 77. London took a considerable amount, and this made it easy for the bulls here. Up to noon 81,800 shares of this stock had changed hands. About the same amount of Western Union was dealt in, and this stock finally took a start, much to the satisfaction of the people who have been lugging it along for weeks and months. The bulls say it is now on its way to 90, and that, all rumors to the contrary not-withstanding, Gould has made arrangements to have it listed at the London Stock Exchange. The stock sold up to 81 at 1 o'clock and the shorts were severely handled.

Our table of fluctuations will show at a glance how general was the improvement to-day.

To those contemplating purchases it may be as well to say that after the recent sharp rise a reaction may occur at any time. The short interest has been materially reduced, and when this is the case i

Many thought that one reason for the booming market was the probable shutting down of the bucket-slope on account of the decision in the Todd case, which would throw loads of business into the exchanges.

The bucket-shops did not close up to-day, but were apparently doing a rusning business. Todd's big affair included, as well as other large establianments on New street and Broadway. The proprietors said, however, that they were only closing outstanding contracts.

COUNTING THE CITY VOTE.

The Board of County Canvassers Makes Good Start at Its Work To-Day.

President Henry R. Beekman, with a scarlet geranium in his button-hole, sat in the Council Chamber for half an hour after 11 o'clock this morning before enough Aldermen came in to form a quorum of the Board of County Canvassers. County Clerk Flack acted as clerk, assisted by Deputy Thomas F. Gilroy.

The canvassing of the votes cast at the recent election began to-day with the Fifth District. In the returns of the Fifteenth Election District the figures for Surrogate and Judges of the City Court were found to be badly mixed up. The returns were re-ferred to a committee and the inspectors were sent for to explain matters. The reading went on smoothly and rather monotonously until the Sixth Assembly Dis-trict was reached, when things livened up a little. The Sixth is the second of the three Assembly districts composing the Fifth little. The Sixth is the second of the three Assembly districts composing the Fifth Judicial District, where a hot fight was waged between Henry M. Goldfogle, County Democracy, and the sitting Justice John H. McCarthy, Tammany. The police returns give Goldfogle a plurality of 297 over McCarthy in a total vote of 24,960. The canvass of the voters of the Fourth Assembly District confirmed the police returns unchanged, and so far no errors have been found in the Sixth District returns. Lawver Charles L. Cobn is so far no errors have been found in the Sixth District returns. Lawyer Charles L. Cohn is in attendance to look after Mr. Goldfogle's interests, and ex-Alderman Ryan scrutinizes the returns on behalf of Judge McCarthy. The Board expects to get as far as the Twelfth District before adjourning this even-ing. The canvass will be completed on Eriday.

It was denied at the Mayor's office to-day that any order had ever been issued forbidding auction sales of paintings at night, or any announcement that the Mayor intended to enforce the old law of 1818, which prohibits the sale in the evening of any which prohibits the sale in the evening of any work of art except line engravings. So long as the law remains upon the Statute books, however, an auctioneer who disregards it is liable to arrest and prosecution if any lit-disposed person should make a complaint against him. Practically, however, it is a dead letter, as is proved by the fact thas every important sale of art works in recent years hat taken place in the evening.

Henry Galway Arrested While Climbing Over the Trestle-Work-Out of Work, Penniless, and His Wife and Six Little Children at Home Starving-Bridge Police Investi gate the Story and Find it True.

Roundsman Wiggins, of the Brooklyn Bridge Police, saw a man attempting to climb over the trestlework on the south roadway of the big structure, on the New York side, near the land span, at 9 o'clock this morning.

The man was very respectably dressed in dark clothes by no means shabby. He wore a Derby hat, and seemed extremely excited and nervous. Roundsman Wiggins was after him in an instant and caught him before he was well over the trestlework.

The man did not look at all surprised when he saw that his object was not to be attained. He looked at the roundsman and said wearily "I wanted to end my life. I am sick and disgusted with it. I haven't had a thing to disgusted with it. I haven't had a thing to eat for four days, and I can't get any employment, try as I may."

Roundsman Wiggins reserved his sympathy for a later period. In the mean time he escorted the man to the Brooklyn Bridge police station, where the prisoner described himself as Henry Galway, formerly a bartender, and now living at 322 Henry street, this city, Galway was broken down when he told Sergt. Phillips that he had a wife and six children who were literally starving. They had been expecting that he would obtain employment this week, but he had been unsuccessful in his search for work.

Galway was searched, and this letter was found in his pocket, with a pair of scissors: My Dear Wife:

I hope you will forgive me and pray for me.
couldn't stand it any longer to see you and my children starving. Your poor but unfortunat husband,
HESRY GALWAY.

So strongly were the police affected by the man's tale that Sergt. Phillips declared that he would set out and investigate the truth of the story, though he had no doubt as to its veracity. A subscription was taken up, an the Sergeant set out with the money for No 322 Henry street.

322 Henry street.

The man's story proved to be only too correct. It was not exaggerated. In the wretched house Mrs. Galway and her children were in reality starving. The woman was as despondent as her husband. She didn't know what they were going to do. They were to be dispossessed to-day, and where on earth they could go was something she could not imagine. not imagine.
The children ranged in age from ten years

The children ranged in age from ten years to eight months, and that they were hungry was too evident. The policeman broke the news of Galway's attempt to his wife as gently as possible, and then told him that he was all right. He left the money raised at the station, which is sufficiently to tile the family over a day or two. In the meantime Galway was taken to Jus-tice Walsh's court and held for examination job and sent him to work elsewhere.

Robert Johnston, the legatee under his brother's will and its proponent, was called. He related the history of the establishment, and said that he was at first receiving a salary of $2,500 a year and 1-12 of the profits, which averaged $8,000. When his brother Charles died his share of the business was left to his brother, the testator, and the witness was then allowed $2,500 a year as general manager.

On cross-examination Mr. Johnston said that he lived at 7 West Fifty-third street. He was asked if John Graham had not drawn a will for the testator, and if Dr. Hammond had not treated Mr. Johnston for brain trouble and rendered a bill for it. His answer was that he had never heard that Dr. Hammond treated his brother in that respect and that although he had never seen it. He knew twenty years ago that his brother intended leaving the property to him.

The witness was asked if any of his brothers had died of drink or any of his family had died in a lunatic asylum.

The answer was an emphatic "No."

"Did you contest the will of your brother Charles?"

"I did not."

"Was not the increase in your annual salary given to allow its probate?"

Mr. Johnston became very indignant, and replied in the negative.

WANT TO PLYAD GUILTY.

The Four Lads Who Killed a Keeper in the House of Refuge.

Moses J. Speights, Gratz M. Smith, Henry Bernard and Frederick Wesley, the lads who killed Keeper W. E. Cole, of the Randall's Island House of Refuge, last summer in an attempt to escape from that institution, want to plead guilty of manslaughter in the first degree. They are indicted for murder in the first de-gree, and their trial is set down in Part I. of the Court of General Sessions for next Mon-

GOING TO WASHINGTON AND CRAZY.

A Dangerous Man Who Announces His Intention of Calling on the President.

Mrs. Von Bodenstein called at Police Headquarters this morning and asked assistance to find her husband, William, who is insane and who, she thinks, is likely to do violence unless he is captured. He has been three times an inmate of Ward's Island Insane Asylum, and when intoxicated is very dangerous.

Last Sunday morning Mrs. Von Bodenstein, who lives at 240 East One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street, received this postal

Trial of E. S. Wheeler Adjourned to Nov. 21. [SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.]
HARTFORD, CORR., Nov. 16.—The hearing in the ase of E. S. Wheeler, of New Haven, charged with obtaining money from the Phoenix National Bank, of this city, by false pretenses, was re-beating his wife. On Sunday he operated in this way upon her until he became quite exhausted and she was decidedly broken up. Harney was arrested and not in the lock-up for examination on Monday. The police thought that they had him tight, but they did not. Barney found the outside of the jail. When the officer went to get him on Monday morning he found an empty ceil and Barney's card. The card did not mention Barney's present address. The officers have been looking for Barney ever since, but without success. His trial has been indefinitely postponed.

A Street Duel in Lexington, Ky. [SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD,] LOUISVILLE, Nov. 16. - The long expected meeting between Col. Thus. Green, correspondent of ing between Col. Thos. Green, correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, and Lew Baldwin, of Nicholasville, took place in front of the Phonix Hotel at Lexington, at it into morning. After a few angry words, shots were exchanged, seven in all being fired. Baldwin was shot through the heart and fell down. Green was shot twice, neither fatal. The from the best of the outgrowth of articles in the Commercial Gazette reflecting upon Baldwin, in reference to the recent election frauds at Nicholasville.

James Reilly, who for many years was a ward detective in the Oak street squad, and was taken up to the Thirrieth street station by Capt, Reiliy, has resigned. Last week he was transferred from

Is Gen. Tuttle's Pension a Just One? [SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD,] WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16 .- Pension officers Bank, of this city, by false pretenses, was resumed this morning. P. S. Bradley, President of the Yale National Bank, of New Haven, testified that his bank discounted a note of $3,461, all for Wheeler, on his representation that the J. L. Wicks Co. was soind. Henry W. Latune, a Baltimore attorney, was called to show that the L. Wicks Co. was formed from James L. Wicks Jas. A Co. without payment of any money, and that 994 shares west first to Jas. Wicks, but this entry was cancelled, and the last record on the stock book was 884 shares for Wheeler. Mr. Bird, bookkeeper for Wheeler, was put on to explain the books, the proscution, desiring to show that numerous large accounts were for accommodation paper only. The defense offered no evidence and the case was adjourned at moon to Nov. 21, Wheeler being held under the same bonds.

Barney Coffey and his wife lived for a long time in Portchester. Of late they have quarrelled a good deal and Barney has fallen into the bad practice of beating his wife. On Sunday he operated in this way upon her until he became quite exhausted and she was decidedly broken up. Barney was arreived and put in the lock-up for examination on the proposition of the politics. Of course, he added, "if we find he has been drawing a pension of the politics of course," he added, "if we find he has been drawing a pension." are investigating Gen. Tuttle's pension. Tuttle
